1. As you suggested, I met with Ambassador Keating on 11 June 1986. We presented our action plan for the Third World project and he seemed generally pleased with our approach. He did have some interesting and potentially fruitful ideas that we are pursuing. In particular:

- o At Ambassador Keating's suggestion, we will examine economic enclaves--areas where special treatment produces a business climate more favorable than in the rest of the country. My economic geographers are looking at specific areas in a dozen or so Third World countries that have the resource and infrastructure characteristics suitable for such zones. Concurrently, we are collecting information on the regulatory characteristics of existing zones.
- o We are beginning our survey of US Government databases on specific Third World investment opportunities by first visiting OPIC to tap into their database. Ambassador Keating believes they have a database that is rich with information that will be useful in this project.

3. At his request, I agreed to meet again with Ambassador Keating in the first week of July. He also volunteered the services of his personal staff in support of this project and is eager to set up meetings with experts in this field. While we will be careful not to get co-opted by Ambassador Keating, his ideas and contacts will be helpful.
